Product-Specific Risks

- You are exposed to sector specific risks as this is a technology fund.
 - Investments in a specific sector mean a more concentrated approach to investments is taken, therefore there is greater than usual risk. The Underlying Entity may be susceptible to factors affecting technology-related industries and to greater risk and market fluctuation than investment in a broader range of portfolio securities covering different economic sectors. As the companies in the technological sector are generally smaller companies, the Underlying Entity may also face additional volatility and also lesser liquidity, as compared with investing in larger companies.
- You are exposed to derivatives risks.
 - The Underlying Fund may use derivative instruments, including futures, swaps, options and forwards, for efficient portfolio management and/or hedging purposes.
 - Derivatives involve risks different from, and, in some cases, greater than, the risks presented by more traditional securities investments. Some of the risks associated with derivatives are market risk, management risk, credit risk, liquidity risk, operational risk and leverage risk.

Refer to Sec 6.2.2 – Derivatives risk and Sec 6.2.12– Sector-specific risk of the FIB for further information on the risks of the ILP Sub-Fund.
